	Q5: Additional comments about the Minnesota Historic Structure Rehabilitation Tax Credit				Sounds like a good program. Our historic buildings are important to our communities. It's a shame Fergus Falls is going to demolish that old psych hospital.		I'm a building preservationist, as evidenced by my past legislation.	I would always like more information and examples of use in my district.	I support the preservation of Minnesota's Historical sites as a part of our unique heritage.			If you answer yes to question 3 and that were not to pass you may want to support an extension. As a result I answered yes to both. However, my first choice is yes for number 3. Q22: Do you agree with the adage "the greenest building is the one that's already built"? Why or why not?	No.	Yes		I some aspects I would agree with that. If you're not using new resources and building materials it's a win, I'd say.	Yes, historical buildings are a piece of history. When the building can no longer sustain itself history is gone and can't be replaced. The cost of building new has a greater impact. It is important to look at reusing and rehabilitating old historic buildings.	Yes. This mindset encourages preservation and restoration.	Yes I do for keeping the refuse from having to be disposed is a big energy saver.	I am a firm believer in reuse and repurposing wherever possible, we live in unique times in which there are ways to accomplish this goal using new technologies or techniques. (i.e. vast improvements in insulation can add energy efficiency and give new life to historic buildings).		I have always loved older and historic buildings, but generally they are not as energy efficient. On the other hand, if these buildings can be conformed the fact that they are already built means the resource investment and full labor cost is a savings. As with each building, the answer is it depends.	Yes, as a general rule. However, not every building would necessarily be green. Facilities may need some improvements to be considered green.	I do believe investing in our current infrastructure and reuse.			No. Old buildings can be very inefficient.
Q23: If elected, would you be interested in being part of a Heritage Caucus in the Minnesota Legislature?	No	Yes	Yes	Yes	Yes	Yes	Yes	Yes	No	Yes	Yes	Yes	Yes		Yes
Q24: What is one "place of character" in your community? Why does this place have meaning to you? What value do you think it contributes to the community?	Duluth Armory, Glensheen, NorShor theater, Greysolon ballroom	Former State Hospital	Old Sandstone High School	The abandoned grain elevator in Villard. In my childhood I made many trips for feed there with my Dad. Not sure it contributes in any value anymore other than it tells a story.	The New Ulm Junior High is a place of importance to me. As a former student I walked the halls and participated in several performances in the theater. The history of being built after the depression leads this building to be meaningful for local economic growth. It's a place cherished by many generations. My name is still inscribed in the basement hall along with the rest of the cast from the musical Annie. I am also looking forward to seeing how this building is updated for apartments to better serve our community for many years to come.	Litchfield Opera House; it's where I first saw Santa Claus. It's an important community asset built in 1900 that citizens including me saved from the wrecking ball. Even as it is being restored and renovated, it is the site of a wide array of functions that bring the community together.	For my community it is our downtown region. While it may not have all the historic buildings it once was, it is still unique to our community and could not be replaced.	There is a beautiful old farm house in Maple Grove that I believe was among the first structures here in the area. I had the privilege to engage in a great conversation with the older gentleman that owns the property and truly enjoyed the history lesson.	Indian burial mound	Stillwater and surrounding areas have so many places that have historic meaning, my personal favorites are the many old barns. For the most part they are still used and maintained. The landscape of barns lends a depth of historic connection with our founders as well as a utilitarian function today. I have an old century farm and old barn myself.	My community would have several potential locations. I think we would need a community task force to help make selections.	I love our Mainstreet in Hopkins, it's history, it's walkability and sense of community.			Indian Mounds Park. I run through that area most days so I see it a lot. Housing, mostly, but it is beautiful as well, along the bluffs of the Mississippi River. It has less traffic as well.
